Cell proliferation produces two cells from one, and it requires cell growth followed by cell division.

Uncontrolled cell proliferation is a hallmark of cancer. As described in the overview lecture of cancer biology, multiple mutations that accumulate in somatic cells ... al. Molecular Biology of the cell. ...

Cell Proliferation and Its Regulation (Biochemistry)

Cell Proliferation. Cell proliferation is defined by the cycling behavior of the cells (i.e., how quickly cells pass through the four phases of the cell cycle) and the numbers of cells that are actively cycling, which is known as the growth fraction.

T-cell activation induces T-cell proliferation, with the goal of clonally selecting and expanding antigen-specific T cells. The extent of clonal proliferation is impressive. Antigen-specific CD8 + T cells expand by a factor of 50,000; CD4 + T cells expand slightly less.
