When Larry and Sergey first met, they didn't like each other much.. In the summer of 1995, Larry Page was considering a transfer to Stanford University's graduate program in Computer Science. Sergey Brin was already two years into the program, and he had signed up to be a tour guide of sorts to potential students.

The History of Google | Internet History Podcast

The history of Google is a story of two brilliant minds, Larry Page and Sergey Brin, who met at Stanford University in 1995. They were both graduate students in the Computer Science department, and they were both looking for a way to improve the search engine. They decided to create a search engine that would be based on the concept of PageRank, which is a measure of the importance of a website based on the number and quality of links to it. They named their search engine Google, after the word "googol", which is a 1 followed by 100 zeros. Google was launched in 1998, and it quickly became the most popular search engine in the world. Today, Google is one of the most valuable companies in the world, and it has revolutionized the way we search for information.
